Dear Islanders,

Your support of Texas A&M University-Corpus Christi is always appreciated, and never more so than in 2020.

We continuously strive to create an educational environment that allows students to thrive. The pandemic required us to find different ways to achieve that goal, and I am proud to say that we succeeded.

Many of you reached out to encourage us and showed extraordinary concern for our students. You asked how you could help and always responded when we needed you. Our students benefitted from your continued support and we saw record numbers graduate despite the pandemic!

Our commitment to students remains unwavering, and your generosity allows us to provide scholarships to high-achieving students and sustain top-quality academic programs. Your donations also allow us to continue our role in educating first-generation college students, developing future leaders and working with our community to ensure sustainable economic growth.

Thank you for your support of Texas A&M University-Corpus Christi and our Islander students.

Sincerely,

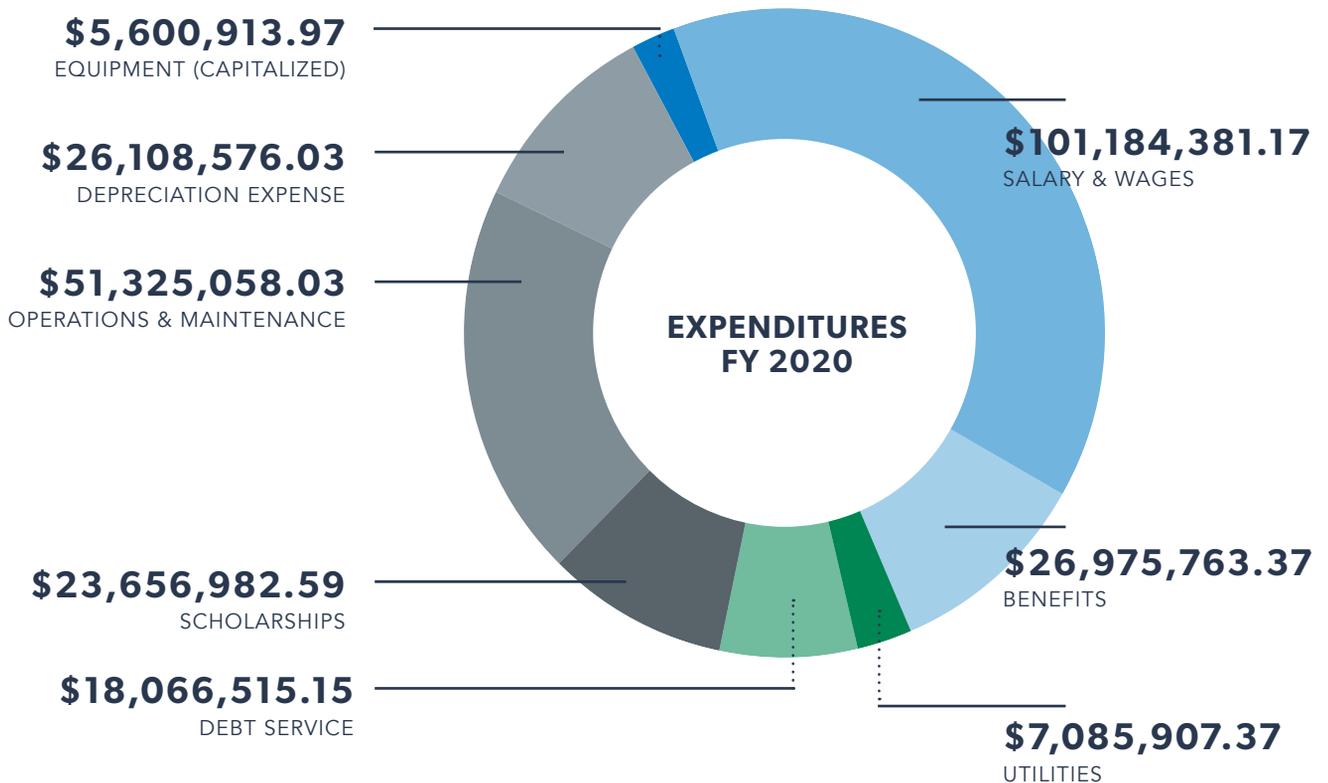

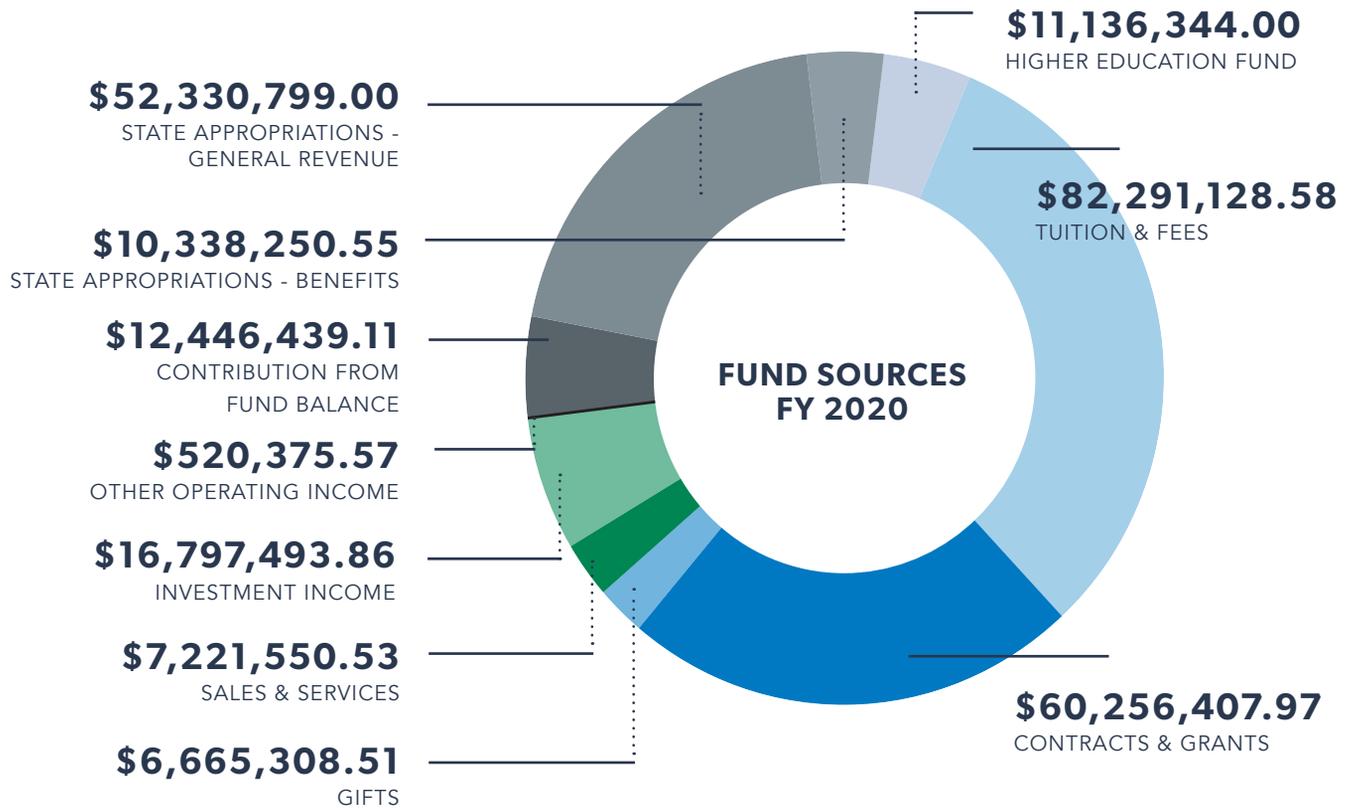

KELLY M. MILLER, Ph.D.

President & CEO, Texas A&M University-Corpus Christi

"Our commitment to students remains unwavering, and your generosity allows us to provide scholarships to high-achieving students and sustain top-quality academic programs."

Dear Islanders, Supporters, and Friends,

I am truly honored and proud to serve as the current President of the Texas A&M-Corpus Christi Foundation. Thanks to the overwhelming support of our founding members, past board members, donor and community leaders, we are making a lasting impact on the lives of students attending our Island University despite the many unforeseen hurdles we are currently facing. It is in difficult times like these that we must remain steadfast in the commitment to our mission of fostering the growth, quality and efficacy of the University, and I am pleased to report that the Foundation now manages $47 million in its endowment. Through these funds, the Foundation makes tremendous and strategic contributions to the development of the University by funding scholarships, chairs and professorships, scientific research and improvements to classroom technology. While we work together in the face of adversity, we want to continue to celebrate the great achievements of our University, including attaining R2 status which validates our capabilities as a premier research institution and allows us to continue to innovate, it is your ongoing support that is imperative to help our students continue their paths to graduation, and integral to further strengthening our influential reach as a premiere research institution.

Under the leadership of Dr. Kelly M. Miller, President and CEO of Texas A&M University-Corpus Christi, we continue our unwavering commitment to ensure every student's success, break down educational barriers and solidify the prosperous partnership between the Coastal Bend and the University. Our commitment guarantees that the education and experience provided to our students shines through their Islander Impact. As Chairman of American Bank, I see this affirmed every day, as we employ many bright, young students from the Island University. Some of these students may not have had the educational opportunities that have led to their success without the generosity of our donors. Working alongside Dr. Miller, we have the pleasure of witnessing our graduates enter the workforce as teachers, innovators, engineers, nurses, artists and business leaders who create positive change and achieve success in our community and the world beyond.

The Texas A&M-Corpus Christi Foundation sincerely thanks you for all you do for the Texas A&M University-Corpus Christi, its students and the entire Islander community.

Sincerely,

FRISBIES CREATE RESEARCH FELLOWSHIP to help protect Gulf waters

As a longtime professor at Texas A&M University in College Station, Dr. Ray Frisbie captured the imaginations of his students, in the classroom and in the field. Along the way, he also has enjoyed more than four decades capturing elusive sportfish as a saltwater fisherman on the Texas Gulf Coast. Now a professor emeritus, Frisbie is casting a line into the future to help the students of tomorrow learn about, care for, and help protect ocean environments.

If you fish on the Gulf Coast, it's your obligation and your responsibility to give back. If you fish, then you must give.

While Frisbie's professional expertise is in entomology, his passion is saltwater fishing. Knowing how to catch a fish with an artificial lure requires a thorough understanding of what is going on below the surface of the water—where the fish are, when they might be feeding, and what might whet their appetites—so Frisbie needed to pay attention to the bays and estuaries he was visiting. What he saw alarmed him.

"I started to recognize serious problems beginning to develop," said Frisbie, who spent his career with the Texas A&M University AgriLife Extension Service. "In the mid-to-late '80s, blue crab and southern flounder populations started significant declines in the Gulf."

In 2003, after 31 years, Frisbie retired as an internationally recognized expert in integrated pest management, a highly respected professor, and head of the Texas A&M College of Agriculture and Life Sciences Department of Entomology for the last nine years of his tenure. Because of his longstanding passion for the Gulf Coast and their commitment to philanthropy as a couple, Frisbie and his wife, Renée, established an estate gift that supports scholarships and program funding in four areas: marine and coastal conservation, special education, integrated pest management, and gardening.

Their vision for this gift toward marine and coastal conservation is to support future graduate students for generations to come. The newly established Dr. Raymond E. and Renée Barsalou Frisbie Endowed Graduate Student Fellowship in Marine and Coastal Conservation will ensure training for future experts to continue the work of protecting our Gulf and the marine life who call it home. Because many students have limited resources, one key component of the fellowship will be to ensure the gift enables students with documented financial need to afford the rising cost of higher education.

To connect his professional home with his passion for the Gulf, Frisbie proposed an innovative partnership between the Department of Ecology and Conservation Biology in Texas A&M's College of Agriculture and Life Sciences and the Harte Research Institute for Gulf of Mexico Studies at Texas A&M University-Corpus Christi. The collaboration is intended to boost both research output and educational benefits. Both programs gain from the Gulf Coast location and facilities, an advantage that will surely help attract and retain top faculty and student researchers.

Frisbie encourages others who share his passion for saltwater fishing on the Gulf Coast to recognize that all who benefit from this resource have a shared responsibility to protect it. "If you fish on the Gulf Coast, it's your obligation and your responsibility to give back," he said. "If you fish, then you must give."

Jessica Trujillo:

READY FOR A CAREER IN SPECIAL EDUCATION

First-generation college student, Islander Jessica Trujillo's dedication to teaching stems from her lifelong passion of helping people learn and grow, and a drive to help those in need.

"When I was in high school, I went on a trip with Habitat for Humanity to help build houses in New Orleans two years after Hurricane Katrina," Trujillo said. "My experiences with humanitarian work, combined with the years I spent volunteering in classrooms, allowed me to discover my ultimate passion for teaching. The more time I spend working with children and helping them to grow, both academically and social-emotionally, has solidified my passion to be a teacher."

Soon after graduating high school in 2007, she started a family with Andre Trujillo.

The impact that I am hoping to have on children once I graduate is to help them develop both academically and social-emotionally.

Trujillo was an active parent volunteer in her children's classes – daughter Liliana, 11, and son Koston, 10. She said the experience helped her focus on the career path she wanted to work toward: serving as a special education teacher.

Trujillo enrolled at Texas A&M University-Corpus Christi in fall 2019 as an Interdisciplinary Studies major, hoping to complete the bachelor's degree that she previously began as a nontraditional student.

"Being at Texas A&M-Corpus Christi has amplified my passion for teaching because I am not only learning new methods and strategies to help students with disabilities, but I am also able to go out into the field and see how these strategies are implemented," she said.

During her time at TAMU-CC, Trujillo has received the Ruben and Rosie Bonilla Endowed Scholarship in Education, the Greater Texas Foundation Removing Barriers Scholarship, the Alpha Delta Kappa Scholarship, and the Bateman Family Endowed Scholarship in Education. These accolades have financially assisted Trujillo in her academic journey and have distinguished her as an outstanding Islander.

Trujillo is grateful to the donors who have provided the scholarships she has received; the financial support has alleviated a lot of the mental and financial stress that she and her family would otherwise face.

"The scholarships I have received have allowed me to take on more courses in each semester than I would have been able to previously," she said.

"This increase in my course load has allowed me to graduate and earn my degree earlier than I anticipated. This is so beneficial to me because it will allow me to enter the workforce and make a difference sooner."

Trujillo said she plans to be an elementary special education teacher following graduation next year.

"The impact that I am hoping to have on children once I graduate is to help them develop both academically and social-emotionally. I think it is so important for future teachers to understand all aspects of children and to teach all aspects of children," Trujillo said. "Students not only need to learn the content and standards, they also need to learn valuable skills about social norms, forming relationships with peers, acceptance, and diversity. All these skills are necessary to their lives beyond their educational career and are vitally important."

With graduation in sight, Trujillo said she looks forward to making an impact on the lives of the students she will teach. She hopes to get a teaching job in the area so her family can put down roots in the Coastal Bend.

"With my degree in EC-12 Special Education, I will be able to teach and work with students in any grade level," she said. "I will be able to make a difference in the lives of my students and to help them grow and learn valuable life lessons that are necessary for them. I am so excited to start teaching and provide access to curriculum for my students."

"I had a tremendous educational experience at TAMU-CC. The professors were encouraging, the classes were interesting, and the Spanish program was warm and welcoming like a family. I want to encourage students to learn a foreign language and to embrace multiculturalism. By learning a foreign language and about other cultures, students will have more opportunities and much richer lives. I donate to the university so that other students can have wonderful educational experiences like mine and participate in the society as citizens of the world."

"Tuve una estupenda experiencia educativa en TAMU-CC. Los profesores eran alentadores, las clases interesantes y el Programa de Español cariñoso y amable como una familia. Quiero animar a los estudiantes a que aprendan un idioma extranjero y experimenten un ambiente multicultural. Al saber un idioma extranjero y conocer otras culturas, los estudiantes tendrán más oportunidades y sus vidas serán mucho más plenas. Dono a la universidad para que otros estudiantes tengan la oportunidad de vivir experiencias maravillosas como la mía y de participar en la sociedad como ciudadanos del mundo."

"The Summer 2020 Student Endowment Internship Scholarship impacted my life drastically. My life would be different without the scholarship because I would not have been able to pay for tuition this fall. As a full-time teacher and a part-time graduate student, I want to express my gratitude for assisting me financially during this global pandemic."

"The Dobson Islander Music scholarship has provided me with countless opportunities to grow in my craft through experience in small ensemble playing and teaching. I am fortunate to be able to enjoy the benefits that come with this scholarship without having to worry about paying for my education. Without this scholarship, I would have missed out on the knowledge, relationships, and experiences I believe are critical in shaping me to be the kind of music educator I hope to be."
